

Evaluation of the Mental Health In-reach Service at Winchester Prison

Introduced in 2001, Mental Health In-Reach Teams aim to provide prisoners access to the same range and quality of mental health services received by patients in the community.

The purpose of the study is to identify the degree to which the aims and objectives of the In-Reach service program have been met, processes which aid and/or hinder program success, the strengths and limitations of the program, and key themes and issues for further exploration.

Alice Mills and Luke Birmingham are co-investigators in this project.

This project received funding from HOPE (Wessex Medical Trust).

Publications to date:

Alice Mills and Kathleen Kendall (2010) 'Therapy and Mental Health In-Reach Teams' in Joel Harvey and Kirsty Smedley, eds., Psychological Therapy in Prisons and Other Secure Settings, Abingdon, Oxon: Willan: 26-47.

Jenny Shaw et al. (2009) A National Evaluation of Prison Mental Health In-reach Services. Manchester: The Offender Health Research Network.

Co-Investigators

Alice Mills
Luke Birmingham

Links to external websites

Winchester Prison

The University cannot accept responsibility for external websites.