BR150/8/22 /1-2	Letter from W.Lowe, agent to Evelyn Ashley, concerning the state of the Sligo tenants, who are very poor and in debt, a good harvest will not be enough to revive their situation as their plots are too small. Should they pay what they can or have abatements or have their previous years rent arrears written off. An abatement of five shillings in the pound is a reasonable concession and those who	20 Nov 1880 - 25 Nov 1880 have the money will pay this despite "the general terrorism". Agitators find it easy to stir up the tenants. "Any private revenge may now be carried out with impunity. Arms are being circulated and there is no protection (there can be none) from the government against scattered outrages. The state of this country is such now that we have the people as one man arrayed against the landlords. To appeal to the law or law makers will but add more fuel to the fire". Lowe recommends that Ashley come and talk to the tenants and tell them he will look after them until better time and will defer payment of the previous half years rent and will abate one fourth of rent to every tenant who pays the remainder. Lowe thinks that a visit by Ashley may diffuse the situation and perhaps save a life "I greatly fear there will be a victim". The tenants are bitter at the dismissal of the labourers. The local landowners are meeting to discuss the situation. "If you decide on coming over, it may be understood for some weeks - but depart as if in reply to telegram". Includes a letter from Edward Parke, Mount Temple, to Ashley, concerning signing a tenants petition concerning abatement of rent even though he has paid his rent, he has to act with the tenants in order to be able to live amongst them. He also recommends that Ashley should visit the estate emigration can solve their subsequent discontent with their situation. The farmers are no longer content to wear frieze and corduroy, children are now ashamed of going barefoot "tea and bakers bread have taken the place of milk and porridge or oatcake". Wages have not kept up with these increased expectations. Heany has already helped 200 people to leave since 1878 and the desire to emigrate is growing. He is himself supporting three families numbering 24 who cannot make a living, 5 pages

BR150/17/2	Letter from Adame Williams, Bride Street, Dublin, to Timothy Waldo, [solicitor to Henry Temple, second Viscount Palmerston], he reports that the case of Walsh versus Ronayne was adjourned until the Chancellor of the Exchequer could appear. Ireland seems to be in a state of confusion "two principle bankers have stopped payment, which has almost destroyed publick credit", one of those banks was kept by Anthony Marlowe, Chancellor of the Exchequer and Nathaniel Clemons, deputy vice treasurer of Ireland". The other bank which has gone bankrupt is Mitchell's bank which included the Burton money. The [Irish] House of Commons has voted to give the Lord Lieutenant [George Montague Dunk, Earl of Halifax] one hundred and fifty thousand pounds "for n-o-th-ing- The pretext was to strengthen the hands of government in case we should be invaded". Mr Rigby is as clever at getting his own way as is Mr Pitt. Mr Robert's private creditors are pressing for payment from the twelve hundred pounds in the trust deed but Williams considers some of the demands suspicious, 2 pages	20 Nov 1759

- BR150/17/7
/1-2 Letter from John Hatch to [Timothy Waldo], concerning his delay in making up accounts and arrears was caused by his standing in a contested election. Money demanded from that deposited with Lewis Roberts in the cause of Walsh versus Ronayne, dispute over road through Christ Church meadows, in the past Mr Flood tried to secure his land by digging a ditch across the meadow but he was threatened by a mob who threw stones and in the end the sheriff of Dublin sent down the militia and Mr Flood was sent to Newgate but Hatch and his father posted bail. Flood's servant is still in jail because it is alleged that one man "a known rioter who has since that time been seen twenty times drinking in different places", was seriously hurt. The governors of the hospital have made an application to have Mr Flood prosecuted. Hatch asks for Henry Temple, second Viscount Palmerston to intervene to protect the road and Mr Flood. The late Henry Temple, First Viscount Palmerston thought that the governors of the hospital did not act correctly. Hatch lost the election by twenty one votes [borough of Swords] but he means to make a petition and to expose Mr Justice Chamberlain "who acted in the most shamefully partial manner that ever returning officer acted in", 6 pages 21 Apr 1761
