

CMRC presents a research day on:

Houses and Households

The day aims to investigate diverse aspects of domestic buildings from the antique until the Renaissance, including the architecture of the physical structures themselves; their contents and furnishings; the social divisions of space as reflected by evidence for the activities taking place in and around them; and differing intellectual and methodological approaches that might advance our understanding of the domestic sphere in medieval times.

Speakers: Graeme Earl, Michael Gale, Maria Hayward,
David Hinton, Matthew Johnson, Ros King, Louise
Revell, Chris Woolgar

Monday 25 January 2010, from 10am

Lecture Theatre C, Avenue campus